Art Unit: 2614

1. Applicant's response is not fully responsive because the amendment is not in compliance with rule 111(b). This rule states the following: "The reply [by an applicant] must present arguments pointing out the specific distinctions believed to render the claims, including any newly presented claims, patentable over any applied references."

Applicant has added four new claims but did not discuss them at all.

Instead of responding to applicant with a non-responsive communication, the examiner has advanced the instant application to final, in an effort to expedite prosecution.

2. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

New claims 3-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

None of the features recited in these four claims is recited anywhere in applicant's specification.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 2614

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kobayashi et al.

Addressing independent claim 2 first, the system of Kobayashi (noting particularly Figs. 3 and 8) includes a control circuit 156 that serves as a switcher according to a selection determined by an operator at unit 154. Input terminals 114 and 116 accept respective input signals from any of various sources (col. 3 lines 27-34), and switching by controller 156 enables selection of a native (non-converted) signal and a converted signal by selective mixing (synthesis) element 146, for display of a composite effect image (noting various display modes shown in Fig. 8).

As for claim 1, the plural inputs can be of different aspect ratios (noting again col. 3 lines 27-34) that are mixed by element 146, for forming a resultant signal as a composite image comprised of selected signals having different respective aspect ratios (noting again Fig. 8).

As for claim 3, a letterbox mode is an option (e.g. mode 4).

Regarding claim 4, control of up and down conversion can also be integrated into the synthesis process (noting even-numbered compression and expansion stages 130-44).

As for claim 5, non-converted signals can be selected by the controller (noting the non-conversion inputs to mixer 146), so controlled downstream by controller 156.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kobayashi et al.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have the system preset in a selected mode to thereby enable display in some initial mode rather than always requiring a mode reset every time the system is activated, as is typical of any electronic system that includes optional settings. It would further have been obvious to bypass any stage so preferred by the operator, for the clear benefit of providing the operator with the ultimate decision making prerogative.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
